Report Highlights:

The Russian Government issued a Resolution #918 which increases the over quota pork and poultry meat duties and decreases duties on over quota beef. The Resolution also reduces the total poultry import TRQ volume by 300,000 MT. The U.S. share of the TRQ was decreased to 750,000 MT from 931,000 MT. At the same time the document increases the U.S. pork import TRQ from 40,300 MT to 100,000 MT for 2009. Meat market experts worry that growth of over quota duties on pork and poultry in combination with reduction of poultry TRQ volume may result in an increase in the retail prices of meat and poultry in Russia and reduce its availability for consumers.

Executive Summary

The Russian Government issued a Resolution #918 on temporary import duties for certain varieties of beef, pork and poultry meat. Duties were sharply increased on imports of pork and poultry meat that exceeded the tariff rate quotas in 2009, but lowered the duty on over quota beef imports. The over quota duty on chilled and frozen beef will be lowered on January 1 to 30% but not less than 0.30 euros per kilogram, pork imports exceeding the quota will increase from 40% but not less than 0.55 euros per kilogram to 75% but no less than 1.5 euros per kilogram. The duty on poultry imports exceeding the quota will increase to 95% but not less than 0.8 euros per kilogram from of the previous rate of 40% but not less than 0.32 euros per kilogram.

Pork and poultry import TRQ volumes were also changed. The quota amount for pork imports was increased to 531,900 tons from 502,200 tons by including trimmings (29,700 tons) in the quota which were listed in a different category of imports in 2008. The 2009 TRQ volume for poultry will be lowered to 952,000 tons from 1.252 million tons. The share of the U.S. quota allocation has been cut to 750,000 tons from 931,500 tons.

Meat market experts are worried that the new measures may result in increase of domestic prices for pork and poultry products. The original Russian text can be found at the following official Russian government website: (
