ATO GZ director Jorge Sanchez at Ole | ATO SY director Philip Jarrell at Ole

On September 1, ATO Directors from Guangzhou, Chengdu, Shanghai and Shenyang participated in the opening ceremony of Ole in-store promotions in their regions. The “Yes America!”, national promotion was co-organized by ATO Guangzhou and CR Vanguard.

Ole is one of China’s only gourmet supermarket chains and is opening stores at rapid rate. Currently it has 18 outlets nationwide and plans to increase the number of BLT stores (better life together) as well. This year Ole celebrates its ninth year anniversary. Its first national American Food and Culture promotion included 14 select outlets. FAS China and 15 U.S. cooperators and organizations jointly sponsored this national promotion, which starts from Sept 1st through Sept 15th. Four opening ceremonies were launched simultaneously in Shanghai, Shenzhen, Shenyang and Chengdu.

Over 1,000 US products will be featured during the promotion.
with over 200 new SKU’s entering some 2nd tier cities for the first time. The main categories include snacks, drinks, dried fruits, nuts, meat, seafood, wines, beer, fresh fruit, sauces, coffee, and dairy products. ATO Beijing Launches Food Ingredients Seminars ATO Beijing launches food ingredients seminars in Beijing and Zhengzhou. During August, ATO/Beijing launched an EMP-funded seminar series aimed at introducing U.S. food ingredients into Chinese processed foods. The first seminar, in Beijing, was conducted in conjunction with the China Institute for Food Science and Technology, the State of Nebraska, and the University of Nebraska at Lincoln. The event was a followup on last year’s dry bean seminars, and focused on the practical applications of dry beans in processed foods, with an emphasis on instant noodles. The second seminar, in Zhengzhou, was a cooperative effort with China Food News, aimed at introducing a wide range of U.S. ingredients into frozen foods, with an emphasis on dumplings. Zhengzhou was selected due to the presence of a number of national-scale food manufacturers in the city. ATO has also collected information on major food manufacturing operations in North China, including their ingredient needs. This report is available by request.

American Food Festival-Menu Promotion in Zhejiang & Jiangsu

In collaboration with Suzhou Crowne Plaza, New City Garden Hotel, Hangzhou Landison Plaza Hotel and Xinchang Landison Greentown Hotel, ATO Shanghai launched a series of Great American Food Festivals with four 5-star hotels in Jiangsu and Zhejiang starting from August 23 till September 27. These hotels are promoting U.S. pork, Alaskan snow crab, oysters, yellow sole fin, potato products, cheese, almonds, raisins and other food ingredients as well as California wine provided by Dragon Trading. Mr. Jeffery Powell, a celebrity guest chef from the United States who currently resides in Beijing and speaks fluent Mandarin, hosted cooking demonstrations and seminar events with local chefs in Jiangsu and Zhejiang. Executive chefs in each hotel and other invited local chefs interactively communicated with chef Jeffrey who also provided an informative and entertaining demonstration to all the guests, bloggers, and lifestyle media contacts who attended the press conference events to launch the promotions.

Mr. Keith Schneller and Mr. Alan Hallman traveled to each city to launch the reception dinners, where our US product sponsors, local traders and hotel chefs made many new contacts consistent with ATO's distributor development strategies. Euro Foods (Suzhou) Trading Company and Meilong United (Ningbo) Trading Company were the main sponsors of the events. Both successfully reached further collaboration agreements with each of the four hotels respectively. For more information, please click here.

World Liquor Forum in Wenzhou

ATO Deputy Director Alan Hallman and Marketing Specialist Susan Zhang visited Wenzhou during Aug 26-28 to attend the World Liquor Forum, which was sponsored by the Wenzhou Liquor Association and Shanghai Grand Echo International Trade Company, a leading wine importer that imported over 400 containers of wines in 2011. Alan Hallman gave a presentation on wines from the United States to over 1,000 wine importers/distributors, wine cellar owners, HRI professionals, media reporters, and local Wenzhou government officials. Representatives from South Africa, France, Romania, Chile, and Moldova were also present. For the full story, please click here.

Market Research of Yiwu and Jinhua in Zhejiang

ATO Shanghai conducted a two-day market research tour of the dynamic economies of Yiwu and Jin Hua City. The Foreign Affairs Office in Yiwu municipality took ATO staff on tour of its famous, commodity market - Yiwu International Trade Mart, which covers a business area of more than 4,700,000 square meters and leases out 70,000 booths, among which 65% are focused on foreign trade. ATO staff visited District Five inside the huge trade mart, where the imported commodities mall is located. During the tour, ATO staff met with the only five-star local hotel's food and beverage manager and executive chef to learn about local dining trends and the penetration of American wines and other food products onto the local peoples' banquet tables. ATO also visited the largest food distributor to hotels and restaurants in Yiwu called Qianweihang Distribution Company. The company also manages more than 20 fast food restaurants in Yiwu. ATO staff visited the Tesco Yiwu store and had a good conversation with the store manager to learn more about Yiwu consumption habits and the performance of imported products in their stores. The contacts we met with are quite eager to expand their inventories of imported food and beverage products and to jointly support American Food Promotion activities.

China Furniture Expo 2012 held in Shenyang
Invited by Liaoning Furniture Association, ATO Shenyang attended the Opening Ceremony of the China (Shenyang) Furniture Expo on Aug 17th in Shenyang, which is reportedly one of the biggest furniture shows in north China. Due to a domestic logging ban which was implemented in 1999 in China, many furniture and flooring manufacturers were forced to use imported lumber. Major exporters in addition to the United States include Russia, Indonesia and Burma. With the growth of wealth and the appreciation of Renminbi, US hardwood products are getting increasingly popular among high-end Chinese furniture and flooring consumers.

Opening Ceremony of Nature Flooring Promotion in Shenyang

U.S. Cooperators in China
USSEC Hosts World Soy Customers in September
USSEC and the United Soybean Board (USB) will host soy customers from more than 20 countries in September. Teams from Europe, Asia, and Central and South America will visit a variety of stops in multiple states. The trade teams will learn more about U.S. agriculture and U.S. soy through tours of farms, export facilities, modern livestock and poultry facilities, and the Chicago Board of Trade.

“This year, especially, it’s important to get our customers out in the field to alleviate fears of not having a crop and also highlights our sustainability,” says Marc Curtis, a soybean farmer from Leland, Miss., and a member of USB’s international marketing program. “You increase demand by making foreign buyers more comfortable with the United States, the reliable supply we have and the quality of our product.”

By focusing on the needs of the individual teams, USSEC and USB hope to continue to grow the personal relationships needed to sell U.S. soy

Evergreen Building Products Association-China Sales Mission - Beijing, Tianjin & Qingdao
The Evergreen Building Products Association’s (EBPA) US-China Build Program (USCB), with the Foreign Agricultural Service, and the Department of Commerce, is organizing its seventeenth sales mission and seminar series for US building materials suppliers, architects and designers. The three seminar series has consistently attracted between 300-530 attendees and resulted in over $230 million in reported sales and numerous distributorships since 2008. Each seminar includes an introductory presentation, followed by presentations by US company representatives about product applications, cost and performance benefits, and case studies. Presentations also include information about design techniques and services. US design firms and suppliers are featured in the seminars and table top displays. The seminars are focused on informing Chinese wholesale-distributors, manufacturers, builders, interior designers, government contacts, and architects about US design techniques and building materials-and how these techniques and materials can be utilized to improve construction performance and aesthetics. Ample time is included during two table top mini-trade shows for attendees to display product samples and meet with Chinese attendees. For more information, please click here.

+ Trade Policy Updates
As China develops and publishes additional implementing regulations for its Food Safety Law, U.S. exporters are likely to face new constraints or even import challenges. The environment is likely to be confusing as the specific standards, guidelines and other documents are released, perhaps without advance notice. FAS/Beijing is attempting to monitor and track all the different announcements, publications, and notifications, and to make sure the USG and industry have an opportunity to comment when appropriate and adjust to the new situation. Following is a bit more detail on three GAIN reports regarding Public Notice No. 55 and AQSIQ Decree 145, which have attracted attention:

GAIN report 12040 (June 27, 2012) conveys AQSIQ Public Notice [2012] No. 55. This Public Notice requires foreign food exporters and Chinese food importers to register with AQSIQ using an electronic... platform it has developed. This registration does not require or involve any certification from the competent authorities in the exporting country. It seems to be an attempt to create a database of exporters and importers of food products. For those who do not already have the report: please click [here].

GAIN report 20020 (April 6, 2012) was the initial report to convey AQSIQ Decree 145. This Decree outlines the administrative measures and other requirements for the registration of food manufacturers whose products are exported to China. In this case, competent authorities in the exporting country must provide specified certifications. For those who do not already have the report: please click [here]. An update of the Decree with revisions and a bit more explanation was published on June 27 as GAIN 12020: please click [here].

The AQSIQ Decree is of more concern to USDA and to FDA than the Public Notice and the USG will no doubt continue to have discussions with China on its provisions. The registration requirement is being phased in by sector. At present, the Decree covers only meat and seafood. AQSIQ is granting a grace period to May 1, 2013 for this initial set of products under Decree 145. Due to the provisions of a 1999 MOU between USDA and AQSIQ, U.S. meat establishments are not subject to the Decree, although we have different views on whether or not processed meats are exempt. We understand the next sector will be dairy. Wine might also be included, but not in the short term. Other products or product sectors will be announced in the future.

The sound bite answer is that Public Notice 55 applies to traders (exporters/importers) with no official verification/certification required, while Decree 145 applies to food manufacturers and requires an official government verification/certification. According to Public Notice 55, all exporters and importers dealing with food products in China market will need to register with AQSIQ by October 1, 2012.
